Relocation Disputes: Applying Research to Practice And Social Media in Custody Evaluations

Course Description. Relocation cases are often considered among the most difficult and challenging for attorneys, mediators, child custody evaluators and judges. There is little research to guide decisions in these cases and professionals often use arguments that have marginal validity and reliability. During this interactive, three hour session, Dr. Stahl will focus on the relevant legal and psychological literature and research, as well as, the risk and protective factors significant in relocation matters. He will then offer a method for integrating all of the pertinent family data into a comprehensive understanding of the child's best interests in particular relocation cases.

In the afternoon, a panel of judges will discuss and respond to questions about what should be included and excluded from evaluations in terms of social media (e.g., when a party in the case brings information from their ex-spouse's Facebook page). These judges will give their recommendations on how best to handle this information when it is presented to the evaluator.

At the end of this course, participants will:

- Utilize the limited research in relocation;
- Identify the significant risk and protective factors associated with a given relocation case; and
- Identify social media information presented during the custody evaluation process.
